Portfolio

Tokbird

Tokbird is a scheduling application for webinars. The users registering on the application need to subscribe to any of the available subscription plans to start scheduling webinars. They can customize their meeting layouts, registration forms etc. from the application. They can also request for facilitators who are employees of tokbird to facilitate the created meetings. This platform would be used by HP, Dell etc. to conduct their internal webinars. There would also be an admin panel wherein all the attributes within the application can be managed which includes user management, facilitator management, payment plan management etc. The platform is still under development.
